Magnolia Women's Club c.1890

For many years, the community was divided by the use of 'Point' in the name. Those opposed noted there was no such geographical feature within the boundaries of the neighborhood. Those in favor felt history should prevail. Not till the 1980's, was there agreement in renaming the community to what we call it today, as the 'Pointers' won out.

First Magnolia News

One of the earliest examples of a community magazine, dating to 3,200 BCE, found during excavations for the original clubhouse. Included in the text are reports on the appointments of officials, wheat prices, wedding announcements, slanders of various enemies, Cindy's Hanging Gardens Tips, the results of battles and calls for enlistment in the army. And the first report by the Ladies 9-Hole League. And Bridge Club results.

Magnolia Park Concert

A reflective Greg Allman awaiting a sound check at Southern Rock's answer to the Yankee's Woodstock. Things started off badly due to the mislabeling the event as taking place in 'Magnolia Park', which got a lot of folks lost, then an unexpected hurricane pummeled the facilities, stripped the stage, and ruined much of the scheduled bands' equipment. Still, it's considered by most as the inspiration for the 'Concert on the Green' celebrations here years later.
